

VP OF ENERGY DELIVERY

Heather Rosentrater
Avista

Heather Rosentrater grew up in Spokane, WA and has been helping residents in Eastern Washington get electricity for the entirety of her career. After all, her mother was an electronics technician so power runs in the family. As part of the leadership team at Avista, Rosentrater uses her experience in electrical problem solving to figure out how to better lead her team.

FUN FACT: Heather won first place in her 3rd Grade science fair with a robot she made herself.

“At some point, most of us will encounter situations where our way of solving problems is different than those around us. It’s important not to hide or be intimidated by those differences. Use those situations to gain confidence and strength in the power of your unique approach and recognize that diverse viewpoints are essential to solving the world’s most important and complex challenges.”
