

BIOLOGIST

Ariel Wauhob
Education Coordinator, Puget Sound Estuarium

“Try a lot of different things. Explore the possibilities... You need to have the courage to fail. Allow yourself to fail at something, because that's how we learn.”

#ShelsSTEM

Ariel Wauhob is an Education Coordinator at the Puget Sound Estuarium in Olympia, WA. She teaches the public about marine life and the Puget Sound estuary ecosystem, where fresh and salt water mix. Ariel's goals are to help us become better stewards of our natural resources and to help us understand enough to educate others about our special local environment.

FUN FACT: Ariel loves to point out that, despite her name, her red hair color, and her deep interest in marine life, she is not a real mermaid!

