Naomi Edwards
PTC

“[As a high school student,] software felt natural for me to get into because I could use it to build things, and that was a lot of fun.”

As an engineer at the software company PTC, Naomi Edwards develops computer programs that teach students how to use Computer-Aided Design (CAD) technology. Her work is informed by a fifteen-year teaching career at Kettle Falls High School, where she helped students find the joy in math, robotics, and computer science.

As a teacher, Naomi used CAD technology while coaching the Kettle Falls robotics team. She continues to coach the team.
